From Editor's Desk...

Dear Readers,

Greetings to you all!

Summer in India is generally harsh more so in the northern parts of the country, south India is no better except few pockets. This year too, severity of the heat has been 'very harsh'. On the last day of April, we experienced one of the highest temperatures recorded (approximately 45 Degrees) in last 70 years. It has maintained its record so far barring one odd day when rains brought some relief and thus this May (month) also may be one of the hottest this year, courtesy global warming. Due to this global warming some of the island countries like Maldives will submerge under waters and many other countries with coastal lines will suffer major losses including India. Also it has come to the light that due to this relentless pressure on the environment for mindless growth and impact of the climate change has put a million of species on the verge of extinction. As per the UN reports, this phenomena is also an unprecedented one because of the pace at which this destruction is approaching which is several hundred times greater than the average over the last ten million years. It is said that at this rate we could hit 75% mark within 200 years, which will be in any case fastest since last five major extinctions which began 445 million years ago, the last was 66 million years ago.

On 24 May, 2019, a major 'fire broke out in Takshashila complex in Surat and we lost precious 21 young lives. Just one day prior, on 23rd one of the most prestigious business complex at Nehru place, Delhi caught fire. Fortunately 30 people were evacuated by the Fire Services and reportedly there were no loss of life. There are gross violations of safety standards and these incidents are not freak ones and thus we as a nation have to do a lot about making our business installations like hospitals, hotels, banks and shopping plazas, Malls and all other public places safe by implementing the provisions of National Building Codes ruthlessly. We, at the IISSM, have been trying to raise awareness amongst all through our training programs, News Letters and "Safety Concern for the Day", daily post on What'sApp, the social media platform.

Lastly, the biggest democratic process of electing representatives for our parliament has just been concluded on 23 May 2019 and the people have given a clear verdict in favour of the BJP government. We feel proud that the electioneering process was very peaceful except in two of the states. It is a mammoth task and for which the Election Commission must be complemented. There were many foreign officials visiting as observer and journalists covering Indian elections across length and breadth of the country and some of them were here to learn 'how to conduct free and fair elections at such a large scale'. They must have been mighty impressed. Long Live : Our Democracy!

With Best Wishes,

Thanks and Best Regards,

Col (Dr.) MP Sen
