Dear Readers,

Greetings to you all!

We all are watching the fury of the rains and floods in Patna despite the October has arrived and worse is expected. This ravaging Monsoon is likely to continue for one more week or so. It has broken past 100 years record so far as receding date is concerned. Although the Rains have been bountiful this year in majority parts of the country, while states like Delhi and neighbouring states received lesser quantity. The states like Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh, Gujarat and Rajasthan have received more than their fare share. In fact these states have not seen such kind fury of nature and deluge in their recent memories. These are not 'Normal'. Last month I raised this question: why the seasons are so abnormal, unpredictable and worsening? It needs soul searching to answer!

Last month, Greta Thunberg cried her heart out at the United Nations and asked the world leaders what they are doing about it? Our Prime Minister also told the world community that "Time of Talking is over! It's Time to Act!" Hope the world leaders take heed of this call and act now else it will be too late! If the rise in temperature is not stabilised or halted many of the small island countries like Mauritius, Maldives will vanish from the face of the earth. In addition, 45 cities including Mumbai and New York will submerge to a great extent and Kolkata and Jakarta will certainly be lost to the sea.

While the world is busy in discussing the 'climate change', economy has started slowing down across the globe. It is being said that whole world is going to be gripped by it by 2020 with more severity than the past. In India, it is being said that the Joblessness is at the peak but there is no evident data to support the claim. It is widely believed that by infusing fresh money into the economic system will bolster the GDP which will halt the reversing trend and create jobs and increase the demand in the market. But we don't realise that this process is NOT sustainable for eternity. Mindless drive to increase GDP year after year has brought this earth to the brink of disaster. We are consuming 1.7 times more than the planet can produce or recycle. Natural resources are getting depleted at a very fast rate and this has created imbalance in every sphere of the nature. Thus, we need to junk this 'Bretton Wood' economic model and devise a new one which will be sustainable without disturbing nature's ecosystem. To my mind we need to invent a new Vedic model to suit the modern times could be the answer wherein it met the 'Just needs' but 'Not the greed' of all the inhabitants of this planet.

The IISSM 29th Annual Global Conclave is approaching fast and preparations for the same are going ON. Lots of work has been done and a lot is to be done to make it a grand success.

With Best Wishes,

Col (Dr.) M P Sen
